My Project

What is the role of the midwife in the mother's point of view?

By Terri (:

Project

Introduction

For the project I am going to be gathering information to find out the answer to my project question "What is the role of the midwife in the mother's point of view?" I am interested in finding out the answer to this because while I was researching information on Midwives I got more interested to know if the role has changed in anyway or has it always been the same. I am also interested in becoming a Midwife when I leave school and have been since year 9. I would like to be a Midwife because I am love working with children but I thought it would be even better to bring the children into the world.

A01 QUESTION

To help me answer this question I will send a questionnaire to mothers with children of all ages to see what mums think the role of the midwife is. Originally my questionnaire was different and aimed for Midwives to answer it but I had to change it for mums to answer it because it was difficult to get in contact with enough Midwives to back up my research, where as I can get in touch with a lot of mums with children of all ages so I changed it for them mums to help me. I have changed my question again. It was "Has the role of the Midwife changed over the last 20 years?". I changed this because when I got my questionnaires back there wasn't a lot of mums with children under the age of ten so I decided to change it to What is the role of the midwife in the mother point of view?" this is because it will be easier to get information from mums about what they think instead of focusing on the age of their child.

OF CHOICE

A01 RESOURCES

A01
PROBLEMS/CHANGES

The outcome of this project will be to decide whether or not the role of the midwife has changed over the past 20 years. My objectives for the project are:

- To find out the role of the Midwives from the mums and Midwives point of view.
- To compare the experiences of the mums depending on their children's age.
- To find out the main roles Midwives played before and after the pregnancy.

Research

I have done some secondary research where I searched the internet. I was looking for the role of a midwife. I looked at several different sites but I didn't use the information because the sites weren't reliable. This was because they weren't actually midwife sites or anything to do with them they were just site were someone is asking a question. I finally found a reliable site to get my information from. I know this information is reliable because the site had been made for families and it also had a lot of information about midwives as well. Also the site I used my information from had contacts on it and had good feedback. So this would make me think that the information is reliable. The advantage of using the internet to find information is that it finds more in depth information. Also it will explain what you already know but in more detail. The advantage of using the internet to get information for my project is that I need to compare what the role of the midwife is and what they actually do and see if it has changed. The disadvantage of using the internet is that you find non reliable sites so you have to read it carefully to make sure you use the right information.

The other way I am going to be finding out information is by asking people questions. I have created a questionnaire to ask several mums. I will be asking them questions on the role their midwife carried out. I was trying to find out what mums think about the role of their midwives. By asking these types of questions I will be able to get the different views and opinions from mums on what they thought about their midwives role. By asking open questions I was hoping to get a more detailed answer and also I would get opinions from all the mums. I also asked closed questions. This is because it would be easier to evaluate the answers. The audience I targeted was going to be five mums with children under the age of 10 and five mums with children over the age of 10. this was to get the different opinions from experienced mums and newish mums. But then I couldn't pick a targeted audience so I asked my teacher to send my questionnaire to other teachers. And advantage of this is that I have now got opinions from many mums. A disadvantage of doing a questionnaire is that some people didn't answer all the questions.

PRIMARY
RELEVANT

Looking at the analysis of my questionnaire it tells me that in a mother's point of view the role of the midwife is carrying out health checks on the expecting mothers, supporting and reassuring expecting mothers, delivering the child, visiting the mum after the birth, giving advice, informing the expecting mother, encouraging the expecting mother, teaching the mothers. This is what I think is the answer to my question I have done some primary research to get this information. In the graph below it clearly shows that the midwives didn't carry out one of their roles.

This is teaching the mothers. From a website I used to get information on what the midwives role actually is I found this bit of information "They teach women about sexually transmitted infections, and focus on prevention of the spread of infections. Many midwives provide family planning services." This is what the midwives are supposed to do or one of their roles, but nearly all the mums that filled out my questionnaire stated that this did not happen. This could have been because they were old enough to know about sexually transmitted diseases or they had already had children, but I don't know this bit of information.

All of this information tells me that the role in a mother's point of view is to carry out health checks on the expecting mothers, support and reassure expecting mothers, deliver their child, visit the mum after the birth, give advice, inform the expecting mother, encourage the expecting mother and teach them.

A04 CONCLUSION

Conclusion

By doing this project I have developed many new ideas. These are to do questionnaires when I want to find out a bit of information from a precise person e.g. if I wanted to find out how many teenagers have given birth this year, I would send out a questionnaire to teenagers because they may have a friend or know somebody who has just had a child in school. While doing this project I have learnt about the different roles midwives carry out and what mums feel midwives carry out. If I did this again I think I would like more time to do it and I would try harder. This led to me not getting a lot of information to help me with this. The bits that worked well in my project were the question and the way I found my answer. Doing the questionnaire really helped me to find the answer I wanted. Also using the internet helped me because it backed up my information. Also another thing that worked well in my project was the fact that I am interested in midwifery so it made it more interesting for me to find this information. The bits that didn't work so well in my project were some of the questions a first thought of like "has the role of the midwife changed over the past 20 years?" this didn't work because I couldn't ask enough mums with children under the age of ten to make sure I got the right information. If I was to extend my project I would do it by adding more information about the role of the midwife from the internet as well.

_____ Midwife was very helpful during my first pregnancy. She saw me frequently and monitored my progress and answered any questions that I had. After the birth, however, I didn't see her as a health visitor came once a week. After my second child, I had little to do with the Health visitors. Moreover, during my second pregnancy, there was little point in seeing a midwife. Each time there was a different person; they were under staffed and I suppose I just lost interest. I was too busy being a mum to number one!

Hope this helps.

Post-natal was OK although I would have preferred to be left alone sooner, didn't like the feeling of a stranger in my home telling me what/how to do things.

Would have preferred to meet up on neutral ground occasionally instead, if I felt I needed advice/help
